Business and Prices. We regret to learn from a New York paper that the intimations thrown out in certain quarters of a general revival in business are not borne out by facts, and the apprehension is expressed that a general business smash-up is imminent. We hope that these apprehensions will not be realized; but we do know that times are hard and will continue hard for some time to come. Republican legislation has had much to do with this. There is starvation and wretchedness throughout the South. Immense taxes grind the people down in the North These taxes in great part have grown out of the work that was required to desolate and impoverish the South. The Republican party could have prevented this in the winter of 1860-1, by assenting, in good faith, to certain pacificatory measures. Believing the South could not by any possibility be kicked into a fight, they refused to assent. Never was there a greater absurdity than lion of men can put in four years vigorously working to destroy the resources of the country and not realize in return for the country. What the Federal Government did not take from and destroy belonging to the South, the so-called Confederate ecessarily in a condition of extreme wretchedness, which condition deprives them of the ability to contribute to the general prosperity. The debt contracted by the Federal Government in this work of destruction is so excessive that the payment of the mere interest thereon, coupled with the extraordinary expenditures conse- passes. quent upon conducting the Government under Republican partisan administration, afflicts every department of business with a paralytic. So much does Government demand from the earnings of individuals and corporations doing a legitimate business, that none but those having the most courageous hearts have the hardihood to take hold of such enterprises as, under favorable circumstances, are calculated to promote activity and prosperity. Capital is timid and does not like to make investments that are belogged with uncertainty. So that we find that a great deal of the capital that has been 'lying around loose" is being rapidly invested in Government securities, on which they receive good interest and are released from paying anything toward carrying on to enter and leave the cars; which was any of the Governments-Federal, State. The Income Tax in England.

The income tax returns, says an English lournal, are very suggestive and instructive as to the general progress of the country in prosperity. From those contained appears that the increase of the value of lands, &c. (comparing 1864 with 1853), has in the tenth report of the commissioners it been at the rate of 1.16 per cent. per annum; houses, 3.50; gas works, 11.45, and railways, 7.57.
